Women's Tehillim

Women's Tehillim group meets on Sundays at 10 am in the Nancy Taffel Annex. All women are invited and encouraged to attend.

Shul Security

We all would like to think that the privilege of living here in America means anti-Semitism is a thing of the past and that we can peacefully coexist and live and work together. Clearly, that is not always the case; therefore, we must all do our hishtadlus. This includes davening, keeping a watchful eye, and spreading kindness whenever possible. Davening is the best layer of protection we can offer ourselves, our communities, and our friends. Hashem sees all and knows all and is the BEST defense we can get.

Security measures for the shul that we are going to implement immediately:

- We will be using one entrance and exit for regular use. That door will be the front door. In case of emergency, we may use every exit in the Shul in order to get out, but in order to reduce security risks, we will use only the front door to enter and exit. All other doors will be locked.
  - If you see something, say something. You may come to any of the board members, and they will happily assess any situation that you feel is unsettling that might provide a security issue.
- As far as items that we are working on to improve security for the shul:
- We will be adding cameras throughout the inside and outside of the building.
  - We will be improving lighting around the building.
  - We will be installing a panic button alarm system. In the event of an emergency, we can push this button, and the police will automatically be dispatched.
  - We plan to host an "Active Shooter Seminar/Training" in our shul for our shul members. The purpose of this training will be to help show us how to respond to an emergency in our own shul, chas v'shalom. Details will be shared as soon as they are confirmed. May Hashem continue to protect us and keep our communities safe.

-Binny Margolese, President

Kol HaNaarim Learning

Bring your son. Bring your son's son. Bring your nephew. Bring the boy next door. Everyone is welcome to come and learn! Beginning this motsei Shabbos, and running through the spring, the shul will be hosting Kol HaNaarim in the upstairs Beis Medrash from 7:00 to 8:00 pm. For more info, please contact Rabbi Elie Levi at elielevi@gmail.com.

Winter Davening and Shiurim

Our weekly Maariv-only minyan has resumed, Monday through Thursday nights at 8:00 pm, followed by Beis Medrash learning from 8:15 until 9:00 pm. Bring a friend, learn with a chavrusa or learn by yourself – just come daven and learn.

Monday nights, Rambam's Sefer Zemanim after Maariv with Jay Taffel.

Tuesday nights, we continue our shiur for men in Chassidus and Chassidic stories from the Malchus Shlomo at 8:15 pm with Rabbi Goldberger.

Wednesday nights a shiur in Rabbeinu Bachya with Jay Taffel at 7 pm.

Thursday nights, "Parsha Preview," from 8:15 to 8:35 pm. This shiur will be given each week by a rotating group of young rabbis who will offer insights on the weekly parsha.

Rabbi Goldberger has resumed the women's weekly Sunday night Navi shiur at 8:00 pm in the Nancy Taffel Annex.

Mazel Tov to

Weekly Parsha*Parshas Toldos

By Rabbi A. Leib Scheinbaum

“The first one emerged red... so they named him Eisav. After that, his brother emerged with his hand grasping onto the heel of Eisav so he called his name Yaakov” (25: 25-26)

Is there an end to the misery that has been inflicted upon us by the descendants of Eisav? While it appears that in the present era our primary national adversity comes from the minions of Yishmael, we may never forget the terror and persecution that have been orchestrated against us throughout history by Eisav's children, particularly those who maintain the strong tendencies of Amalek. Horav Yaakov Moshe Charlap, zl, observes that, even when Eisav (or his descendants) exhibit themselves as being “first” and stronger, Yaakov still grasps his heel. This implies that Eisav's rule has limits. Yaakov will hold on for dear life, but he will hold on and not permit Eisav to go beyond what is Heavenly-permitted. It is very much like a dog that is chained to a post. The dog will run and growl, bark and paw at anything in his reach, but it will never get beyond what is allowed by the length of the chain.

Eisav's domination over Yaakov, his iron anti-Semitic grip, will only go so far. Eisav has limits. He cannot break the chain. I think that there is one stipulation to this: we must act like Yaakov. Yaakov Avinu is symbolized by his affinity to Torah and emes, truth. This is our Patriarch's persona: Torah study and a strong adherence to integrity, an abhorrence of any semblance of falsehood. The mantle of being called Yaakov's descendants is accompanied by the responsibility of living up to this honor. A chain that is “rusted” will not have the power to contain the dog.

All's Well that Ends Well

After reviewing Sefer Bereishis each year, I have noticed that we find many significant references to wells in the different parshios. A malach of Hashem appears to Hagar at a well to reassure her that she will give birth to Yishmael (Bereishis 16:7-14), and then again a malach appears to her by a well to save the life of Yishmael (ibid. 21:17-19); Avraham dug wells in Gerar [and disputed over them with Avimelech] (ibid. 21: 25); Eliezer's search for a wife for Yitzchak began and ended at a well (ibid. 24:11-20); and Yaakov met his beloved Rochel at a well (ibid. 29:2-10). But perhaps the most cryptic and seemingly insignificant episode involving wells in Sefer Bereishis appears in this week's parsha, Toldos: “All the wells that his father's servants had dug in the days of Avraham his father... Yitzchak's servants dug... and found there a well of fresh water. The herdsmen of Gerar quarreled with Yitzchak's herdsmen... so he called the name of that well Esek... then they dug another well, and they quarreled over that... so he called its name Sitnah. He relocated from there and dug another well; they did not quarrel over it, so he called its name Rechovos...” (ibid. 26:15-22).

The commentators note that there must be reasons why the Torah relates the seemingly trivial incidents of the wells in such detail. One answer, according to Artscroll, is that wells symbolize the spiritual wealth that is hidden beneath the layers of human smugness, materialism, and laziness. Avraham, who was the spiritual father of all mankind, tried to show the world how much they could accomplish (if they wanted to) and did so through the symbolism of digging wells, which represents a quest for spiritual riches that lie beneath the surface. The Pelishim rejected his teachings [and stopped up all of Avraham's wells], but Yitzchak picked up where his father left off and persisted on a similar quest (Stone Chumash).

It seemed odd to me as well (pun intended!) that the Torah would attribute so much time and detail to this story involving these three wells, so I continued my search for a deeper significance to this episode and found an answer in the Ramban. Invoking the principle, “An event that occurred to the Avos is a portent for their descendants,” he explains: Scripture relates and goes to great lengths about the matter of the wells, even though the story, simply understood, serves no apparent purpose, and does not give any great honor to Yitzchak; and furthermore, both he and his father equally made [these wells], and Scripture did not see fit to mention these wells when Avraham first dug them. In truth, there is a hidden matter contained within this incident, for it comes to inform us about a future event. For a “well of water” is an allusion to the Beis HaMikdash, a Temple of G-d, which the descendants of Yitzchak would one day build. [Yitzchak] called the first well Esek (Contention), which alludes to the First Temple, over which [our enemies] contended with us, engaging us in many conflicts and many wars, until they destroyed it. He called the second well Sitnah (Hatred), a harsher name than the first one; it is an allusion to the Second Temple, which is called by that very name, for it is written concerning [that Temple], “During the reign of Ahasuerus, at the beginning of his reign, they wrote a hateful accusation (simah) against the inhabitants of Yehudah and Yerushalayim” (Ezra 4:6); and all its days [the enemies] were hateful towards us, until they destroyed it, and we went into a terrible exile from it. He called the third well Rechovos (Expanses), an allusion to the future Temple, may it be built speedily in our days. It will be built without conflict or dispute, and Hashem will expand our borders [in a future time]. The Ramban adds that because the “well” is a metaphor for the Temple, the Beis HaMikdash serves as the conduit from which the “flowing water” of Divine inspiration, whose source is Hashem, may be drawn.

The Midrash states that Yitzchak became so incredibly wealthy in the land of Gerar that people began to say, “The dung of Yitzchak's mules is worth more than Avimelech's gold and silver!” (Bereishis Rabbah 64:6). Consequently, the Pelishim became jealous of Yitzchak's success and subsequent wealth, and out of envy, stopped up the wells which Avraham's servants had dug. The digging of the wells was of profound symbolic meaning. Torah is compared to water; when Yitzchak dug these wells, he entreated Hashem that just as he toiled to open these springs of water, so should Hashem open up the wellsprings of Torah wisdom for his descendants (ibid. 64:7).

The chapter of the wells concludes with a “peace treaty” that was established between Avimelech and Yitzchak in the form of a covenant. After Yitzchak and Avimelech parted ways the next morning, the Torah tells us: “They awoke early in the morning and swore to one another; Then Yitzchak saw them off... they departed from him in peace. And... on that very day that Yitzchak's servants came and told him about the well they had dug, and they said to him, ‘We have found water! And he named it Shibah... the name of the city is Be'er-sheva until this very day” (Bereishis 26: 31-33). The Ramban notes that the name Be'er-sheva commemorates two occurrences: the באר, well, and the שבועה, oath, thus confirming the oath by which Yitzchak and Avimelech affirmed their covenant (Rashi). May we all be zoche to witness the fulfillment of Yitzchak's third well, Rechovos, with the coming of Moshiach and the Bayis Shlishi. A gutten Shabbos.

A Tribute to Pittsburgh

Two weeks ago, motzei Shabbos, we all were horrified by the news of the tragedy that took place in Pittsburgh. In spite of the horrific news, we as Jewish people know that life must go on, so we try to go about our normal activities, albeit with a heavy heart. Monday morning I was at the JCC gym and was suddenly overcome with a feeling that I simply could not go about my normal activities. First, I called my wife and told her that I was coming home early from the gym and that we were going to Pittsburgh. Next, I called my daughter, owner of Delightfully Sweet bakery, to see if she had some extra pastries that we could bring with us to give to the people at Tree of Life. A little sweetness from Baltimore.

We arrived at the Tree of Life on Monday evening around 7 pm, and were greeted by Jews of all persuasion. Yeshiva University sent a Rabbi Snyder to work with the community, and we met a chaplain from Florida who specializes in traveling around the country to help trauma victims and their families, to do what he could. Most of the people we met there were still traumatized, yet they were able to express their appreciation for people who took the time to come from Baltimore to be with them. When we were having dinner at Milky Way Pizza on Murray Avenue, we met a young man who also came up from Rockville to be with his fellow Jews and share in their grieving. The next day, we returned to Tree of Life and met Rabbi Daniel Wasserman, the Rav of one of the local Orthodox shuls, who was going into the building to help clean up the blood. We knew Rabbi Wasserman when he was a child, and we had not seen him in almost forty years.

The most amazing thing was that the people of the community all pitched in to help. In fact, the local Federation was completely overwhelmed with calls from people volunteering to help. We left Pittsburgh on Tuesday morning with a heavy heart, just as the first funerals were taking place. May Hashem bring comfort to the families of the victims and the entire Pittsburgh community, as well as all the mourners of Zion and Jerusalem.
