Chametz Burning

The annual Baltimore Chametz Burning will take place this Friday from 6:30 to 11:30 am at the Pimlico Race Course Clubhouse parking lot. Non-perishable items will be collected for distribution in the Southern Park Heights community. Thank you to City Councilman Yitzzy Schleifer for making this year's event free to the public.

Baal Shem Tov Seuda

The entire kehillah is invited to come join us for the Baal Shem Tov Seuda, Shabbos Day (the 8th day of Pesach) one hour before Maariv. There will be singing and niggunim. Bring your leftover matzah, wine, and grape juice to the seuda, as the Rabbi shares tales and lessons from the legendary Baal Shem Tov.

New Maaser Vendor

We welcome Karen Yosafat Beleck's Maryland Kinesiology and Wellness Institute to our maaser vendor program. The shul will receive maaser when you use Karen for her business of alternative health and wellness, brain gym, reflexology, essential oils, LifeLine psychotherapy, energy testing for food and supplement sensitivities. She is located at 3505 Pinkney Road. Check out her website at www.mdkwi.com; you may contact her at 410-358-9580 or mdkwi.com@gmail.com.

No One Goes Hungry

It's Friday. The seder is tonight. There's another one tomorrow night. If you still need a place, we've been known to do miracles. After all, it is Pesach. Email Suzanne Kayne at inappropriate@comcast.net (yes, it has 3 p's) or text 410-830-9909.

Chol HaMoed Excitement

The entire Baltimore community is invited to join the fun -- three community-wide Chol HaMoed events sponsored by Talmudical Academy. Climb Zone, Monday, April 22, and Tuesday, April 23, from 10 am to 4 pm (online pre-registration required with code TA2019), and Players Fun Zone on Wednesday, April 24, from 1 to 5 pm. Fun for the entire family! For any questions, please call 484-6600, ext.7314. Chag kasher v'samayach!

Mazel Tov to

A Message from the Rabbi

Dear Kehilla HaKedosha,

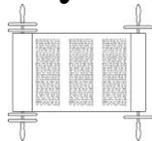

In light of the third child in the Baltimore community contracting measles, I strongly urge everyone who is not properly vaccinated, adults and children, to get vaccinated. Anyone who is not vaccinated cannot attend shul until they have done so. Please make sure to notify your out of town guests of this important shul policy. Hashem yishmnor aleinu v'al kol Yisroel.

-Rabbi Menachem Goldberger

This week's Lev Echad is in honor of:

Suzanne Kayne and everyone who participated in Tiferes Yisroel's "Share a Seder" and other Pesach meals. For those who offered hospitality, thank you for your patience, your graciousness, and your sense of camaraderie. Yasher koach!

Weekly Parsha

Pesach

By Rabbi Ozer Alport

“Concerning four sons does the Torah speak: a wise one, a wicked one, a simple one, and one that is unable to ask” (Maggid)

The Haggadah teaches that the Torah addresses four different types of children and instructs us how to educate each of them about the Exodus from Egypt. In his sefer Shemen HaTov, Rav Dov Weinberger points out that when examining the verses which record the questions posed by the three types of sons who are capable of asking questions, the Torah (Shemos 13:14 and Devarim 6:20) introduces the questions of the wise son and the simple son with the words Ki yishalcha bincha machar - when your son asks you tomorrow - but in conjunction with the question attributed to the wicked son, the word machar is omitted.

Rav Weinberger explains that although the wise and simple sons have questions about the Exodus from Egypt, the Torah tells us that they only ask their questions the following day. On Pesach itself, they are focused on performing the mitzvos that they recognize that they are obligated to do, and only after they have fulfilled their obligations do they ask about what they did so that they can better understand the mitzvos. The wicked son, on the other, insists on asking his question today, because if he is unable to understand the mitzvah and doesn't receive a satisfactory answer to his question, he will refuse to perform the mitzvah. This is what makes him wicked, as it is the diametric opposite of the Jewish attitude of na'aseh v'nishma - we will do and we will listen (Shemos 24:7).

Similarly, the Kotzker Rebbe points out that we declare Ein K'Elokeinu - there is none like our G-d - and only afterwards do we ask Mi K'Elokeinu - who is like our G-d. He explains that this teaches us that asking questions is permissible and encouraged, but only after one has clearly established and accepted the fundamental tenets of Jewish belief.

Rav Chaim Soloveitchik had a student who unfortunately left yeshiva and abandoned the Torah lifestyle. Many years later Rav Chaim was visiting the city where this student lived, and the student came to visit him. He said to Rav Chaim, “I have a number of questions and doubts about Hashem and Jewish beliefs. Can we discuss them?”

Rav Chaim responded, “I’ll be happy to sit down and talk to you about your questions, but first tell me one thing: did your questions come before you stopped observing Shabbos or afterward?” The student replied that the doubts developed after he began to desecrate Shabbos. Rav Chaim responded that in that case, the student didn’t have questions but answers. In other words, he had already decided not to adhere to the Torah, but he began to feel guilty over his decisions, so he developed questions to rationalize and justify his decisions. Rav Chaim added, “I’m happy to answer questions, but for answers I have no answers.”

This theme is one of the lessons of the four sons. Questions are fine, even from a wise child, as long as they are asked “tomorrow,” after one has accepted the primary and unshakeable obligation to perform the mitzvos. However, if the questions are a prerequisite to observing the Torah’s commandments, it is an indication that we are unfortunately dealing with a wicked son.

The Mitzvah of Matzah

In parshas Bo, the Torah states: “For a seven-day period you shall eat matzos, but on the previous day you shall nullify the leaven from your homes... You shall safeguard the matzos, for on this very day I will have taken your legions out of the land of Mitzraim... In the first [month], on the fourteenth day of the month in the evening shall you eat matzos... in all your dwellings shall you eat matzos” (Shemos 12:15-20). Rashi notes that elsewhere in the Torah it says, “For a six-day period you shall eat matzos” (Devarim 16:8). This apparent contradiction, according to Rashi, teaches that while there is no obligation to eat matzah on the seventh day of Pesach, one is not permitted to eat chometz on it either. In fact, Rashi continues, likewise, on the other six days of Pesach, while there is no obligation to eat matzah, one may not eat chometz. However, one might think on the basis of this reasoning that even on the first night of Pesach eating matzah is voluntary, so the verse states that “On the fourteenth day of the month, in the evening you shall eat matzos” to clarify that eating matzos on the first night of Pesach [first two nights in chutz l'aaretz] is, in fact, an obligation.

It is written in the Haggadah that the reason we eat matzah is “Because the dough of our fathers did not have time to become leavened before the King of Kings, the Holy One, Blessed is He, revealed Himself to them and redeemed them, as it is written: They baked the dough which they had brought out of Mitzraim into unleavened cakes... for they were driven from Mitzraim for they could not delay, nor had they made provisions for themselves” (Shemos 12:39). The Haggadah’s reason for the mitzvah of matzah, based on the pasuk, is that the dough did not have a chance to rise because the Yidden left in haste; yet we see from the earlier pasuk that eating matzah was already commanded before they even left Mitzraim. I believe that the Haggadah uses this pasuk to emphasize the fact that we left Mitzraim in a hurry, not to teach us that there is a mitzvah to eat matzah, which we already learned from the earlier pasukim. In fact, we see that it is intrinsic for a Jew to eat matzos on Pesach from Avraham and Lot, when they were each visited by the three malachim: “So Avraham hastened to the tent to Sarah and said, ‘Hurry... knead and make cakes’” (Bereishis 18:6), and “And he [Lot] urged them very much... he made a feast for them and baked matzos, and they ate” (ibid. 19:3). According to the Midrash (Bereishis Rabbah), this visit took place on Pesach - and since Avraham and Sarah fulfilled the mitzvos before the Torah was given - he wanted Sarah to make the cakes [matzos] herself to guard against leavening of the dough (Alshich). Regarding Lot, Rashi agrees, and quotes the Midrash (ibid. 50:4) by saying “Of all the food at the feast, the verse mentions only matzos specifically, to teach us that it was Pesach.”

The Alter of Kelm writes: “Hashem timed the departure of Israel from Mitzraim, so that there was insufficient time for the dough to rise. The Torah wished to teach us that Hashem did not take us out of bondage to have us pamper ourselves with luxuries, which force us into a never-ending race to seek them. Through them, man becomes a slave to himself. And, in contrast, if a man knows how to limit pleasures - an attitude which is symbolized by the non-rising matzah - he can embrace true freedom, freedom of thought and freedom from anxiety. Thus it is that Chazal declare: ‘Such is the way of Torah. Eat bread dipped in salt and drink water in measured quantity’ (Avos 6:4). If he follows such a pattern, he will not be a slave to his desires. That is the true free man. For ‘there is no truly free man other than he who is occupied with the Torah’ (Eruvin 54). Our whole purpose in life is to be free from desire, and then we will experience bliss. We will be happy with what we have and not wish for that which we don’t possess. Each year, the matzah reminds us to be happy with our lot. This leads to a fortunate life in accordance with the Torah.” The Sfas Emes adds, “Apparently, time was of the utmost essence that first Pesach night. Had Israel tarried even for moments, they would have become assimilated into the Mitzri society to the point of no return. As the Midrash states, Israel would have sunk into the fiftieth gate of umah - the lowest abyss of impurity, from which they could never have emerged. G-d’s revelation came just in time to avert a national catastrophe – the end of the Jewish people forever.”

The Haggadah refers to matzah as לחם עני, “the bread of poverty.” The Sfas Emes writes: “By calling matzah ‘bread of poverty,’ the Torah may be hinting to a powerful lesson about the relationship to material matters. In the words of the Mishnah (Avos 1:17), ‘I have found nothing better for oneself [the body] than silence.’ To paraphrase this, where material matters are concerned, there is nothing better than ‘silence’ – a humble and simple approach. The more we avoid the honors and creature comforts that accrue with wealth, the more we will subordinate our bodies to our souls. Indeed, body and soul collaborate best in their common mission to serve Hashem when each reaches its potential, the body through moderation and humility, and the soul through joy.”

Food for thought while we fulfill our mitzvah of matzah this year. May we all be zoche to experience true freedom this Pesach, and through the experience of eating matzah at our seder, achieve physical humility and spiritual exaltation. A gutten Shabbos and chag samayach.
