Weekly ParshaParshas Va'eschanan

By Rabbi A. Leib Scheinbaum

"And with all your resources" (6:5)

Me'odecha is translated as resources, implying that even if love of Hashem causes one to lose all of his money, he should be prepared to do so. There are those who would endanger their lives to save their wealth. They, too, must place love of G-d above all else. Ramban explains that the word me'odecha is derived from me'od, which means "very much." This means that one is obligated to love Hashem more than anything else which he favors. Since some people put their money in the fore of their lives, the Torah enjoins that love of Hashem takes precedence even over money.

The Chofetz Chaim added that just as money is referred to as me'odecha, since it is one's most valued possession, one who values Torah more than anything else must be prepared to sacrifice his me'odo, when the opportunity to express his love for Hashem or to sanctify His Name arises. Indeed, the Chofetz Chaim told his son-in-law, Horav Hirsch Levenson, zl, who was the Menahel, Director, of the Yeshivah in Radin, that, in order to run a yeshivah, one must be willing to sacrifice the time he normally apportions for Torah study.

Horav Elchanan Wasserman, zl, was more than the Rosh Yeshivah of Baranovich; he was "everything" to the yeshivah. Thus, he would often take extended trips to various countries to raise vital funds for the yeshivah. He would say that on these long, arduous trips he would, at times, want to steal himself away and return to his beloved Torah study. He thought to himself, however, "This is the yetzer hora talking. It wants me to study Torah specifically at a time when I must raise additional money for the yeshivah."

Horav Aryeh Zev Gurvitz related that when Rav Elchanan once visited England on a fund-raising mission, he visited with Horav Elya Lopian, zl. He began his visit with a Torah thought, and the two Torah luminaries were lost in the vast sea of Torah. Every once in a while, Rav Elchanan stopped the conversation with a fund-raising question. "Where can I find an individual who has the wherewithal and the will to support the yeshivah?" He would then immediately return to his question or answer. After this had occurred a number of times, to the consternation of those present, he explained, "This is what was taught to me by my rebbe, the saintly Chofetz Chaim: When a person is involved in carrying out a mission for a yeshivah, he is forbidden to allow his mind to wander to other issues. His primary focus must be the yeshivah, to the exclusion of everything else.

The Power of Prayer

Parshas Va'eschanan begins with, "I implored, ואתחנן, Hashem at that time, saying, 'My Lord, Hashem/Elokim, You had begun to show your servant Your greatness...'" (Devarim 3:23-24). Rashi states "I implored" is one of ten terms for prayer. It is used when one seeks an undeserved favor, for truly righteous and humble people never feel that they have a claim on G-d's mercy. The Midrash states that Moshe petitioned Hashem 515 times to annul the decree forbidding him to enter Eretz Yisroel, alluded to by the gematria of the word ואתחנן, which is 515 (Yalkut Shimoni Devarim 940).

The P'nei Yehoshua (Berachos 32a) suggests that these 515 prayers to Hashem can also be mathematically derived. Before the conquest of the lands of Sichon and Og, Rashi states that Moshe's prophecy returned with Hashem assuring him of his impending victory. After Moshe had conquered the mighty Sichon and Og, whose lands were among those given to Israel, Moshe hoped that this display of Hashem's 'greatness and strong hand' (v. 24) meant that perhaps he might indeed be permitted to enter the Land as well, so he davened for the right to cross the Yarden. According to the Gemara, Moshe began his pleas on the 15th of Av (Bava Basra 121a, Rashi 2:17). From the 15th of Av until the day of Moshe's death, the 7th of Adar, there are exactly 200 days. If Moshe davened for the annulment during each of the three daily prayers, he would have petitioned a total of 600 times. However, one does not make personal requests on Shabbos, of which there were 28 during this period. If you subtract 84 from 600, you are left with 516. Since Moshe's prophecy did not return to him until the morning of the 15th of Av, he did not ask Hashem to annul the decree by Maariv, leaving him with precisely 515 supplications until the day of his death.

Rashi describes "You had begun to show Your servant" as an opening to engage in prayer, although the decree had already been issued. Moshe said to Hashem, "I have learned from You. For You told me, 'And now, let go of Me.' Was I holding on to You? But You told me this to make an opening for me, by letting me know that it depended upon me to pray for them. I was under the impression that I should act in a similar manner now." This, Moshe understood, was perhaps G-d indicating to him that there might be a continuation to this course of action (Mizrachi; Gur Aryeh). On "Your greatness," Rashi states: "This is the Attribute of Your Kindness." Rav Shlomo Wolbe defines performing acts of kindness as one of the defining characteristics of greatness. He writes, "Chazal tell us that Avraham Avinu personified kindness. Avraham proved that true greatness is measured by one's kindness to others. Hashem's greatness lies in the very fact that He takes an interest in our lowly world, sustains us, and cares for our every need. Avraham's belief in divine Providence caused him to understand the parameters of true greatness."

The Baal Shem Tov explained that people fail to treat prayer with the proper esteem, since they are disappointed when their prayers go unanswered. The truth is, according to Rav Asher Weiss, that no prayer is ever ignored, nor does any prayer ever go to waste. He writes, "Hashem answers all our prayers in a manner that He alone knows is best for us. Sometimes our prayers are answered directly, and we receive exactly what we requested. Sometimes we receive something even better, but are not even aware it came about as a result of our prayers." So what happened to all of Moshe's 515 prayers?

Rav Asher Weiss answers, "Regarding Moshe Rabbeinu's 515 prayers, it is interesting to note that the world as we know it is destined to exist for a span of 6,000 years. However, the Midrash gives a more precise figure of 6,093 years (Midrash Osiyos D'Rebbe Akiva). Moshe supplicated Hashem with his 515 prayers in the final year of his life, which was 2,488 after Creation, and 3,605 years before its completion. The world's existence is divided into seven-year Shemittah cycles -- 3,605 divided by 7 equals 515. Therefore, it seems that although Moshe's prayers were not answered for his own benefit, they were not rejected outright, but instead reserved for the benefit of Bnei Yisroel; one prayer for every seven-year cycle of Shemittah. This merit guards us until the end of time, and ensures our ultimate return to our Land."

The Talmud teaches us that prayer stands at the heights of the universe (Berachos 6b), reaching a place in Heaven far loftier than man can discern. Therefore, we are often unable to understand the relationship between our prayers and the blessing that results from them. We should never underestimate the power of prayer. Although we may pray on our own behalf, we may receive in return blessing for our children or grandchildren for many generations to come. May we all be zoche to have our prayers answered by Hashem, regardless of how He chooses to answer them, and appreciate that everything He does is for our own benefit. May we all be zoche to appreciate the gifts that Hashem bestows upon us each and every day, and continue to use the power of prayer for ourselves, for our children, and for all of klal Yisroel. A gutten Shabbos.

The later time is the regular candle lighting time and is 18 minutes before sunset, the latest time to light candles.
