Weekly Parsha

Parshas Bereishis

By Rabbi A. Leib Scheinbaum

“And G-d said, ‘Let us make man in Our image, in Our likeness.’” (1:26)

Man was created in Hashem’s image. This means that every human being, regardless of his or her position, shares a unique quality with Hashem. This is the Tzelem Elokim, image of G-d. While man’s physical appearance does not mirror G-d, he has a quality which is uniquely endemic to man, his ability to exercise free will, which relates him in some way to Hashem. While Hashem always chooses correctly, man does not. Man errs and is subject to his inclinations which very often reign over him. Therefore, man’s ability to choose between good and evil is what makes him “G-d-like.” He has the potential to choose correctly and thereby elevate his “G-d-like” status, or he can defer to his evil inclination and descend to the nadir of depravity, thus destroying his essential “G-d-like” image.

When one realizes that his ultimate self-worth is based upon his incredible potential to become “G-d-like,” he is encouraged. Certainly, one who recognizes his potential for greatness does not have any issues concerning self-esteem. After all, for what more can one ask? The ability to achieve Tzelem Elokim status-- to rise above a morally bankrupt world filled with spiritual filth-- should be sufficient to catapult one’s self-esteem. Indeed, it is stated in the Shaarei HaAvodah, “The first gateway to serving Hashem is the realization of one’s own worth.” How can one act inappropriately when he realizes that he will be debasing himself?

The next step is to realize that this same gift has been given to all other human beings. Therefore, the awareness that my fellow man also possesses a Tzelem Elokim should engender a healthy respect for the other. Indeed, as Horav A. Henschel Leibowitz, zl, explains, one who claims to have self-respect, but does not respect others, probably has little respect for himself. He cites the Baalei Tosfos who posit that one recognizes and is reminded of the Tzelem Elokim in others to a greater degree than in himself. Therefore, if one honestly respects his own nobility and potential, he should be even more aware of his fellow’s greatness. Furthermore, if Hashem decided to create a person, He obviously did so for a reason. Who are we to disagree? Respect for others is equivalent to respect for ourselves. When we do not manifest respect for others, it indicates that we are ourselves troubled.

Let There Be Light

It’s Shabbos Bereishis - a new parsha - a new beginning. As we leave our אהל מועד and return to shul for davening, we take with us the energy from the yom tovim and infuse it into the new beginning. Although Covid-19 has spread much darkness over the world, the light of Torah still shined through and filled our tent with its warmth and its brilliance. It is with this light that we begin the Torah anew with Bereishis. The Ramban refers to Sefer Bereishis as the “Book of Creation,” as it is not only the story of the creation of the universe and everything in it, but also the birth of Israel, the nation that inherited the task of Adam and Chavah. The Torah relates the story of the six days of Creation ex nihilo to establish that G-d is the sole Creator and to refute the theories of those who claim that the universe is timeless or that it came into being through some massive coincidence or accident. Therefore, the purpose of the story of Creation is to state that nothing came into being except at G-d’s command (Ramban).

The Torah states: “G-d said, ‘Let there be light’... there was light. G-d saw that the light (את האור) was good... G-d separated between the light and the darkness” (Bereishis 1:3-4). This light, the אור הגנוז, was a supernal light - an intensely spiritual “hidden light.” The Gemara (Chagigah 12a) states: “R’ Elazar said: Regarding the light that the Holy One, Blessed is He, created on the first day... He proceeded to hide it from [the wicked]. And for whom did He hide [this light]? For the righteous people in the Future, as it says: G-d saw that the light was good; and ‘good’ refers to none other than a righteous person, as it says: Say of the righteous person that he is good. (Yeshayah 3:10)” Based on this verse in Sefer Yeshayah, our verse can be rendered as, “G-d saw that the [אור הגנוז] light was [to be reserved for the sake of the righteous person, who is called] good.”

The Midrash says that the juxtaposition of these two verses, “G-d saw that the light was good” with “G-d separated between the light and the darkness,” implies that G-d saw that the light was good, and that was the reason He separated it from the darkness. Rashi states: G-d saw the light, that it does not deserve that the wicked use it, and He set it aside for the righteous, to be used by them in the future (Gur Aryeh). Where was this supernal light, the אור הגנוז “stored away” for the tzaddikim in the future? We find an amazing remez in the pasuk itself: “G-d saw that the light (את האור) was good.” את האור has a gematria of 613, alluding to the taryag mitzvos. Thus, “G-d saw that the light was good” so He “separated between the light [the righteous] and the darkness [the wicked]” and He hid it [the אור הגנוז] away in the Torah. What an amazing concept! Every time we learn Torah, we infuse ourselves with glints of this supernal light! The Gemara states that although the phrase לעתיד לבא לצידיקים “for the righteous people in the future,” might be taken to indicate that the light is reserved for the World to Come or the Age of Mashiach, or the like, it is not the intent here, according to many sources. The Midrash says that the light was hidden for those who toil in Torah SheBe’al Peh by day and night. The Zohar (II 148b-149a) states that whenever people exert themselves in the study of the Torah, a ray shines forth from that light and rests upon them. Geon Yaakov cites the view that this light was hidden specifically in the Aggados of the Talmud (commentary to Chagigah 12a).

In the Midrash, Rabbi Shimon notes that the word אור appears five times in the opening verses, corresponding to the five books of the Torah: “Let there be light” (Bereishis 1:3) corresponds to Sefer Bereishis, in which the Holy One created His world. “And there was light” (ibid.) corresponds to Sefer Shemos, in which Israel came from darkness to light. “G-d saw that the light was good” (ibid.1:4) corresponds Sefer Vayikra which is full of many laws. “And G-d separated the light from the darkness” (ibid.) corresponds to Sefer Bamidbar, which makes a distinction between those who left Mitzraim and those who came into the Land. “And G-d called the light ‘Day’ corresponds to Sefer Devarim, which is full of many laws (Bereishis Rabbah 3:5).

The Sages explain that אור הגנוז shined for only 36 hours before it was hidden away for the tzaddikim in Olam Haba. The Midrash (Bereishis Rabbah) states that the אור הגנוז shined for the entire 24 hours of the first Shabbos, as well as the 12 hours preceding that Shabbos, from the moment that Adam and Chavah were created on the sixth day. At the conclusion of Shabbos, the light disappeared. For this reason, we make Havdalah with a candle at the end of Shabbos, to symbolize our hope for the return of the rays of the אור הגנוז. Alternatively, the אור הגנוז shined for the first three days of Creation, before the great luminaries [the sun and the moon] were created on the fourth day. Since each day had 12 hours of light and 12 hours of darkness, the 36 hours of “light” emanated directly from the אור הגנוז. Based on this 36-hour chiddush, the Bnei Issachar connects the אור הגנוז to the light of Chanukah. It is said that the holy light of the Chanukah is the אור הגנוז, and each night we light a successive light. We light for eight nights, adding up to 36 lights; each light that is lit on Chanukah is *kenege*d one hour of the אור הגנוז of Creation.

We are living in dark times, and rely on the light of the Torah to help us navigate our way through the חשך of this world. As we stand on the threshold of the Final Redemption, we anxiously await the coming of Mashiach and the return of the radiant glow of the אור הגנוז. It's Shabbos Bereishis - a new parsha - a new beginning. May we all be zoche to "see the light." A gutten Shabbos.

From this Week's Daf

"Rav Yehudah said: Night was created specifically for sleeping. R' Shimon ben Lakish said: The moon's light was created specifically for Torah study. [People] told R' Zeira: Your teachings are sharp. He responded: They are from daytime study. The daughter of Rav Chisda asked Rav Chisda: Does the master not need to doze a little? [Rav Chisda ] answered her: Soon, in the grave, there will come days that are long for the purpose of sleeping and too short for the purpose of Torah study, and then we will sleep very much. Rav Nachman bar Yitzchak said: We who study Torah are daytime workers. Rav Acha bar Yaakov would borrow and repay his study hours. (Eruvin 65a). *He [Rav Acha bar Yaakov] set for himself a quota to study each day. When business affairs interfered with his schedule, he would borrow hours from the day and repay them at night, completing his study quota (Rashi).
