Camp Yom Tov

Once again, Tiferes Yisroel is offering child care for Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur for infants and children up to 8 years old. We will also continue the junior counselor program for children ages 8-11. To ensure the safety and well being of our children, as well as to maintain the beautiful davening in our shul, we strongly suggest that all children under the age of eight be enrolled in Camp Yom Tov. Parents MUST supervise their children at all times if they are not enrolled in child care.

The deadline for registration is September 5. Please contact Talia Raun at 443-761-2072 or campyomtov@gmail.com for questions.

Baruch Dayan HaEmes

We are saddened to inform the kehilla that Rabbi Goldberger's brother, Joel Goldberger, a"h, has passed away. The funeral was held on Sunday, August 26.

May the Goldberger family be comforted among all the mourners of Zion and Jerusalem.

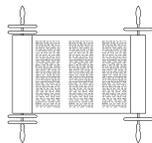

This week's Lev Echad is sponsored by:

Hillorie Morrison, in memory of her husband Elliott, and to thank the Rabbi, Rebbetzin and kehilla for their outpouring of support and comfort.

and in honor of Sivia Kayla Feinstein, our wonderful daughter and big sister, on the occasion of her Bat Mitzvah this Shabbos. Sivi, we are so proud of the chesedik, thoughtful and creative young woman you have become — Mazel Tov! With love, Abba, Mom, Avraham Meir and Elimelech.

The Weekly Parsha

Sedrah Selections – Selections

by Zvi Akiva Fleisher

Ch. 22, v. 4: “Chamore ochicho” — The donkey of your brother — Rabbeinu Bachyei points out that in parshas Mishpotim we find “shor oyivcho o chamoro” (Shmos 23:5), or the donkey of your enemy. He explains that after one has shown kindness to his enemy, he gains an affinity for his fellow ben Yisroel, even an enemy, and his enemy becomes his friend.

The Meshech Chochmoh explains that the gemara P’sochim 113b explains that the enemy referred to by the Torah can only mean a person who has sinned and not repented, as only such a person is it permitted to hate. Thus in parshas Mishpotim, before the sin of the golden calf it was common to find a person who was untainted with sin. Our parsha, which was after the sin of the golden calf, refers to all as friends, as even if you come upon someone who has sinned. You yourself are also not blemish free, and thus have no right to hold your fellow ben Yisroel in contempt.

Ch. 23, v. 12: “V’hoyoh lifnos erev yirchatz bamoyim” — And it will be when it turns towards evening he shall bathe in water — This means that he should immerse himself in a mikveh. We find “lifnos erev” when the verse says that Yitzchok went into the field to pray “lifnos erev.” Just as here the verse discusses immersing oneself in a mikveh, so too, when one goes to daven it is preferable that he first immerse himself in a mikveh. (Rabbi Yehudoh Chosid)

Rabbeinu Yonoh in his commentary on the gemara Brochos says that when one immerses in a mikveh before prayer, it makes his prayers more effective.

Ch. 23, v. 25: “Ki sovo b’cherem rei’echo v’ochalto anovim k’naf’sh’cho so’vecho” — When you come into the vineyard of your friend and you may eat grapes to your satisfaction to your satiation — Rashi (gemara B.M. 89b) explains that this refers to a hired worker. It is only when the worker is harvesting ripe produce and placing into the owner’s vessels that the worker may also partake of the produce. If however, he is hired to prune the vines or the like he may not eat the fruit.

The gemara Taanis 9a states that although Hashem gives reward for mitzvos in the world-to-come, when it comes to the mitzvoh of charity there is reward given in this world as well. The gemara goes on to say that we may even “test” Hashem in this by giving charity and expecting to see reward right here in this ephemeral world, based on the verse “b’chonuni noh b’zose.” Why indeed is charity unique in this manner?

Just as our verse says that when the hired worker places produce into the owner’s baskets he may also partake of it, so too, when we give charity to Hashem’s poor, and in particular to destitute Torah scholars, we are putting “fruit into the Owner’s basket.” At that time we may also derive benefit, so we likewise will benefit from giving charity even in this world. (Holy Admor of Satmar in Olomos Shechorvu)

Ch. 24, v. 5: “Ki yikach ish ishoh chadoshoh” — When a man takes a new wife — This comes on the heels of “v’lo sachati ho’oretz” of the previous verse. This teaches us that by taking a wife rather than remaining a bachelor, a man avoids many sins. (Baal Haturim)

Ch. 24, v. 18: “V’zocharto ki evved hoyiso b’Mitzrayim va’yif’d’cho ... mishom al kein onochi m’tzavcho” — And you shall remember that you were a slave in Egypt and He redeemed you ... from there therefore I command you — This is the reason given for the prohibitions in the previous verse, to not distort the judgment of a convert or orphan and to not retain the surety offered by a widow for a loan, for an unreasonable time. The reason the Torah chooses these people is because they easily fall victim. The convert does not have a large family standing behind him, with someone who could be forceful if it is obvious that there has been a perversion of justice. The orphan likewise has no father to fight for him. The widow is usually defenceless against this injustice.

When Hashem took us out of Egypt we were already on the 49th rung of impurity, having picked up negative traits and ideologies from the Egyptians. Hashem could have rightfully left things as is and ch’v if the bnei Yisroel would have descended any further, to the point of no spiritual return, He could have left us there. This is alluded to in the words “va’yif’d’cho ... miSHOM.” “Shom” means a distanced place (see Sefer Hashoroshim by the Radak and Haksav V’hakaboloh). We were very distanced from Hashem and there was no one to take up our case. Nevertheless, Hashem redeemed us. This is ample reason for our being responsible to deal likewise with the underprivileged and helpless. (Nirreh li)

Ch. 25, v. 9: “V’choltzoh naalo mei’al raglo v’yorkoh b’fonov” — And she shall remove his shoe from upon his foot and she shall spit in front of him — “Chalitzoh” is a seemingly very strange ritual. What is most startling is the seemingly contradictory behaviour of the widow. She behaves as a most subservient maid servant by removing her brother-in-law’s shoe and then spits onto the ground in front of him.

Rabbeinu Nisim of Marseille explains that in verse seven we find that the woman comes to the court before her brother-in-law does, and she states that he has refused to memorialize the name of his deceased brother through refusing to take her as his wife. Verse eight relates that the court sends for him and discusses this matter with him in an attempt to persuade him to reconsider. He stands his ground and states to the members of the court that he has no interest in taking her as his wife. The woman then removes his shoe from his foot. Up to this point all her actions are actually a demonstration of her keen interest in sustaining a remembrance for her husband who died childless. She has acted totally out of character. She goes public by telling the members of the court that she very much wants to become her brother-in-law’s wife, but that he has refused. When he is brought to the court and refuses again, she further throws herself at him by doing a relatively low service, that of removing his shoe, demonstrating that she would have been a most obedient wife, doing even the most menial tasks if so requested, and in spite of this he has refused. She immediately lets out her frustration for his refusal by denigrating him in public by spitting in front of him. This is a most cathartic procedure for the bereaved woman. She has publicly displayed her love of and dedication to her deceased husband’s memory, and is allowed to vent her frustration by spitting. It is only at this point that she is psychologically ready to pursue marriage with someone else.

Focus on Tanach

The idea is to complete all of Tanach, as a community, with each family or individual learning a book from Tanach or a Parsha from the Torah. There can be overlap, as long as we finish Tanach as a shul.
