The Weekly Parsha

Parshas Naso

By Zvi Akiva Fleisher

"Al pi Aharon uvonov - According to the word of Aharon and his sons" (4:27)

We do not find this expression by the responsibilities of the Kehas family in the end of parshas Bamidbar. Abarbanel explains that it is obvious that the responsibilities of the Kehas family, which involved the transport of the holiest objects, was done under the scrutiny and supervision of Aharon and his sons. However, lest you think that the responsibilities of the Gershon family did not have this special supervision, since they were involved with lesser holy items, the verse therefore spelled out that their service was also done under the careful control of Aharon and his sons.

"Yo'eir Hashem ponov - Hashem will illuminate His countenance" (6:25)

In practical terms, what is this illumination? The previous verse is a blessing for having one's personal needs attended to and having them safeguarded. Once a person has this, the blessing of our verse is that Hashem will open a person's eyes. By virtue of this illumination, he will plumb the depths of the wonders of the Torah and Hashem's actions, and the world he sees around him. (Sforno)

"Yisa Hashem ponov ei'lecho v'yo'seim l'cho shalom - Hashem will lift His countenance to you and place for you peace" (6:26)

The gemara (Brochos 20b) relates that the angels complained to Hashem, saying that in His Torah he has written, "Asher lo yisa ponim" (Devarim 10:17). If so, why does He show favoritism to the Bnei Yisroel as demonstrated by the words of our verse? Hashem responded that He cannot but show favoritism to the Bnei Yisroel, given that in the Torah it is stated, "V'ochalto v'sovoto uveirachto es Hashem." It is only after one eats and is satiated that he is required to recite grace after meals. Yet, the Bnei Yisroel are stringent with themselves and even after eating only the volume of an olive or an egg they recite grace after meals. What is the correlation between these two?

The essence of the blessing of our verse is that Hashem will give us a peaceful existence. In the main the underlying cause of strife is when someone or some group feels that they are lacking. They then blame it on others, and this can even lead to war and bloodshed. The Bnei Yisroel, by reciting grace after meals even upon having only eaten a small volume of food, demonstrate that they feel satiated with even a small amount. This attitude is one that is totally contrary to the underlying cause of strife. Hashem, in kind, blesses them with peace.

Having cited the gemara in Brochos, it is in place to offer the beautiful insight of Rabbi Chaim Volozhiner. The gemara says that the Bnei Yisroel are stringent with themselves to even recite grace after meals on a small volume. What is the intention of "on themselves?" Rabbi Chaim answers that they satisfied themselves with a bit of food, but when a poor man came and asked for food they did not say to themselves that if a small bit is enough for me, it will likewise suffice for the poor man. Rather, they gave him a large respectable amount of food, a true "shiur svioh."

"Shalom - Peace" (6:26)

The gemara (Brochos 59) says that one who sees a pot in his dream can look forward to peace. Rabbi Mordechai Banet explains that discord comes from those who have opposing opinions. A pot serves the purpose of containing water, and when placed on a fire, the water is cooked and is very useful. Thus, the pot makes peace between two totally contrary items, fire and water. This is why the one who sees a pot in his dream can expect peace.

Know Your Shul Members – Sima Cooperman

Sima Cooperman was a graduate student at Rutgers University, passing through the student union on her way to a meeting, when she was approached by a young man with questions: Are you Jewish? Do you light candles for Shabbos? Would you like to learn how? Yes; no; yes. Now? Her meeting was in 20 minutes: Yes. After the lesson, he gave her candles and disposable candle holders, and she bentched light for the first time the following Friday evening—as she sees it now, one of the most momentous decisions of her life. “And that was the beginning of my journey.”

A professor at Howard Community College and University of Maryland University College, Sima holds a PhD in art history with a specialization in the Italian Renaissance. She also curates and gives tours of the Judaica collection of Chizuk Amuno Congregation on Stevenson Road, a collection she says the Jewish Museum of Maryland considers to be the finest in Maryland, with excellent examples of antique ritual artifacts, well preserved. Among modern artists, Sima particularly loves the work of the abstract expressionist painter Mark Rothko.

When Sima moved to Baltimore in 1985, she and her then-husband, Shmuel Vick, were looking for a wonderful shul. Through his work at the Hubble Space Telescope Lab and the Applied Physics Lab (APL) at Johns Hopkins, they knew David Weintraub, one of the founders of the shul. Sima attended a memorial service for one of Judy Ference's parents, and she was very impressed with the genuine nature of the Rabbi and Rebbetzin. When she learned they were starting a shul, she “of course wanted to go there,” and they found it just as expected, very warm and accepting. They also knew a lot of people who were joining the shul, and it was nice to have friends who were there, like Andy Goldfinger, who also worked at APL.

Sima's children are Ami Vick, Ditty (“Dee-Dee”) Vick, and Yoni Cooperman. Ami has smicha and lives in Yerushalaim with his wife, Sara Dena Drelich, and their two children, Shayna (4) and Benjamin (Benja, 1). Ditty is a medical student at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. Yoni lives in “Berzerkeley,” California, and is working towards his master's degree in soil science at UC Davis. His wife, Laya, works in public health in San Francisco.

This past November 26, while in Israel to visit her family, Sima suffered what her family and community would soon learn was a hemorrhagic stroke. Her children quickly convened and remained by her side through the weeks of treatment that followed, as did her friend and fellow TY member Bob Rosenfelt. At Hadassah Hospital Ein Kerem, Sima underwent an emergency craniotomy and craniectomy and was in a coma for over three weeks. On December 19 she was flown back to Baltimore, where she was treated at Johns Hopkins, the University of Maryland Rehabilitation and Orthopedic Institute (Kernan), and Powerback Rehabilitation. She finally came home on April 2—the day before erev Pesach.

Ditty is currently on leave from medical school to care for Sima. The two plan to write a book together about the experience of Sima's stroke and recovery. Sima's favorite mitzvah—can you guess?—is bikur cholim. She loves visitors and would like to see the shul develop a more robust program, with coordinated schedules for visits. Please call her at 410-245-6068 to arrange a time to come by her house in Greenspring for a visit.

"The good part of all this," says Sima, is that she is a kallah. She and her chassan, Bob Rosenfelt, plan to wed on June 30, b'ezras Hashem. May they be zoche to build a bais ne'eman b'Yisrael!
