RABBI’S MESSAGE

Isn’t that Special

“Remember what Hashem did to Miriam” punishing her for speaking ill of her brother Moshe. The Ramban claims this pasuk is t Thus, establishes Miriam’s words as the paradigm for lashon hara.

However, a careful read of Hashem’s response to Miriam suggests that she was not taken to task for speaking ill of Moshe per se; rather for misunderstanding that he was a different kind of prophet. All prophets receive G-d’s messages as a dream of sorts. Moshe by contrast could speak directly with Hashem. Miriam’s sin was, in fact just. a big mistake. She failed to appreciate Moshe’s unique status. Indeed, this too, is apparently sinful behavior.

If this be the case, how can Miriam be held as the model for lashon hara? Her sin was of a different sort.

R. David Silverberg suggests that this failure to see the special character of Moshe lies at the root of the lashon hara phenomenon. Moshe was certainly uniquely special. But in fact, every individual has special qualities that, should we fail to notice, enables us to go down the dark path that ends in hateful speech.

Miriam reminds us that we must see the special quality in each and every person. Focus on what is special and we will all be lifted up; failure to see what is special in the other is a slippery slope to slanderous speech.

May we each remember Miriam, what she did, and Hashem’s response. Perhaps, that cautionary tale will make us think twice when we are, next, tempted follow her example.
