THE RABBI'S MESSAGE

Rabbi Eric. L Abbott

My Sad Visit to the Mona Lisa

I remember when I finally laid eyes on the Mona Lisa. If you have never been to Paris and seen this famous piece by Leonard da Vinci in person, you might assume that the painting is a massive portrait and that you can approach it easily, inspect its fine details, even find a moment of deep contemplation as you gaze upon this masterpiece. You would, of course, be mistaken, for the Mona Lisa is neither big nor accessible. Smaller than a typical movie poster, it sits behind glass, which itself is set back behind a railing, and crowds often block the artwork from view. When I discovered this, I felt a bit sad: this treasure, a gift to humanity by da Vinci, is inaccessible.

Thank goodness the Torah, our greatest gift, is within our grasp.

That is what we celebrate this upcoming holiday of Simchat Torah. This holiday, found at the end of Sukkot, glorifies the Torah through song, dance, and ritual. At BJC this year in early October, we will take out the Torahs and dance with them, we will sing boisterously and vociferously, and we will even unroll it in its entirety so we can take it all in.

One might assume that the Torah, the most precious Jewish artifact, would be kept away behind glass like the Mona Lisa. Fortunately, we do the opposite. Rabbi David Kalb of the Jewish Learning Center of New York teaches: “How powerful it is...that the Torah is something so sacred—we’re so careful with it all year round—but at the end of the day, we’re dancing with it. Passing it. It’s out there. It really makes a statement: the Torah should be out there in the world. It shouldn’t be sequestered.”¹ As we read on Yom Kippur, the Torah is not some distant thing in the heavens or across the sea, but right here within reach—ready to be unrolled, danced with, and celebrated.

I invite you to do this unrolling, dancing, and celebrating with us on Simchat Torah. Please join us on Friday, October 6 for a musical Simchat Torah Shabbat (with the band!). Not only will we celebrate the Torah, but also our students. We will honor all religious school students this year, and we have a special treat for our newest students to commemorate their Consecration. This holiday is for all ages: all students of Torah should come and participate.

Yet beyond our annual celebration, I hope that Rabbi Kalb’s message of Simchat Torah motivates us throughout the year: to bring Torah out into the world. Come study with us in Torah Today (Wednesdays, 7 PM, online) so we can dive deeply into Torah and then take that wisdom into our lives. Pray with us on Shabbats, including our new Tot Shabbat and Family services on the first Friday of the month starting in November, so that our spiritual growth can inspire our lived experiences. Join us in enacting the Jewish value of tikkun olam by performing acts of justice and love—join our Social Action Committee. Or participate in any of the countless other opportunities BJC has to offer!

No matter which ways we choose to join this community, I hope that we will each do so by engaging fully in Torah and letting it guide our lives. May we do so on this Simchat Torah and may we do so in all moments of life.

1. Rabbi David Kalb, quoted in: Abigail Pogrebin, My Jewish Year (Bedford, NY: Fig Tree Books, 2017), 99

FROM OUR PRESIDENT

Issie Resti

October is, without a doubt, my favorite month. My kids (those I teach and those I'm raising) and I have finally settled into a routine, the preparation for both the meals and spiritual renewal that mark Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur is finished, and perhaps most importantly, Costco starts stocking those really huge bags of chocolate. This is when I feel like I can pause and take a deep breath in, and while the roses might be gone, I'm more than happy to take time to stop and smell the bonfires. While the calm afforded by the slower pace of October can be soothing, I also find it challenging because I don't want to let myself slip too far into being comfortable. I worry that if I relax too much, I might become complacent or lose momentum.

So too it can be with life at BJC. Throughout September, BJC buzzed with energy. But many of the events imbued with urgency and great significance that bring us to synagogue at the start of the year -- Selichot, the first day of Religious School, Kol Nidre -- are now over. It can be easy to let months and months pass without walking back through the doors. But it shouldn't be that way, and reasons to come back in abound!

There are ongoing opportunities to gather with your fellow congregants to learn Torah with Rabbi Eric (Wednesday evenings -- include a special class in the Sukkah on Oct 4) or Hebrew with Maran (Saturday mornings). Friday, October 6th, we will mark both Simchat Torah and our new religious school students' consecration. You can join us on a tour of the Capital Jewish Museum on Sunday, October 8th. This wide array of events gives you the opportunity to not only expand your intellectual horizons, but also your social ones. Meet new people, discuss new ideas, visit new places. Let's combat complacency, maximize momentum, and do our part to maintain the vibrancy that we've all enjoyed over the past month.

B'shalom,

Issie

HIGH HOLY DAYS

The High Holy Days are now over (for this year) and we want to thank the many volunteers who ensured that all of the services and events ran so smoothly. There were 58 volunteer slots filled by 44 volunteers, so a special thanks to those who did double (and triple) duty. Our volunteers (i.e., you) served in numerous roles, such as ushers and parking assistants (and book movers), and helped with the setup and cleanup of the Oneg and Tashlich at Rosh Hashanah. And you built a beautiful sukkah where we were able to have a meal, shake and hold a lulav and etrog, and connect with our cultural and religious heritage.

All of your efforts were very much needed and appreciated—and hopefully you found it rewarding, too.

Just one more thing: Sukkot does not end until Oct. 6 so we are not taking down the sukkah until Sunday, Oct. 8. We can use a few more volunteers to take down the sukkah starting around 1:30pm. Please click HERE to go to the SignUp Genius website and help with this task. Or, contact the High Holy Days Volunteer Coordinator, Jim Korelitz, at jjkore@msn.com or 301-385-3015.

Manna Food Drive

By Paul Segal

Our High Holy Day food drive was a big success! Thanks to everyone who helped fill 5 large blue bins with nonperishable food for MANNA.

Food insecurity in our community remains a significant year-round problem. Hunger is prevalent yet often goes unnoticed, and its prevalence remains steadily on the rise.

IN CASE YOU MISSED IT

SELICHOT

SELICHOT- A VERY MOVING EVENING

By Harri j. Kramer

Our Selichot program showcasing the film, “Defiant Requiem” transported the nearly full house of Covenant Hall to another place and time and back again.

After a brief introduction by BJC Program Co-chair Joan Kaufman, Maestro Murry Sidlin set the stage for how he became involved with telling the story of Verdi’s Defiant Requiem concert at Terezin, which during WWII was a transit ghetto and concentration camp 40 miles northwest of Prague.

Sidlin spoke briefly about how he first discovered the book, Music of Terezin, which led to his journey of discovery about Conductor Rafael Schachter, the central character in “Defiant Requiem.” Through many twists and turns, Seldin ultimately encountered an individual who was at Terezin and could validate the stories. Much of the film centers on his recollections, as well as those of others who were there. In short, these Jews, who were rounded up from their homes and stripped of their possessions, worked all day, and then came together in the evenings in a dank cellar to practice the Verdi opera. One of the few things Schacter brought with him was the score for Defiant Requiem. As there were no means to copy the score, this amazing chorus had to memorize the Latin of the opera.

The film explains why Terezin, known to the Germans as Theresienstadt, was the showcase the Germans used to convince the International Red Cross that the prisoners were well cared for and happy in their pursuits. In fact, by singing a Catholic mass to the Nazis, the prisoners were able to sing that which they could never say.

An amazing component to the film was the modern story of the musicians who went to Terezin to perform this masterpiece. We watched Maestro Sidlin with his orchestra and chorus, many of whom traveled from the Washington, DC area to perform. For many, this experience helped them understand the Holocaust at a deep and personal level.

After we watched this award-winning documentary, Maestro Sidlin stayed a long time to answer our questions. We encourage you to learn more by going to www.Defiantrequiem.org. (cont.)

BJC was joined in this program by many members of Adat Shalom. After the film, we enjoyed a delicious dinner, sitting together and getting to know each other. After dinner, we went back to Covenant Hall, where Rabbi Eric led us in a beautiful Selichot service. A highlight for many was coming together as community around a table to change the Torah covers into their High Holy Day whites. Our service ended with the amazing Shoshanah Drake blasting the shofar to Tefilah Gedolah. A perfect ending to a moving evening.

Maestro Sidlin's collection of essays, Conduct Unbecoming, is available at Politics and Prose.

UNITY WALK By Marty Ganzglass

The annual Unity Walk, celebrating the unity of people of all faiths in the face of the terrorism of 9/11, took place on Sunday September 10th. Organized by the Interfaith Council of Greater Washington and beginning at the Washington Hebrew Congregation and ending at the Islamic National Mosque on lower Massachusetts Avenue, the event drew large crowds. After being welcomed by Rabbi Susan Shankman of Washington Hebrew and Cardinal Gregory of the Archdiocese of Washington, people left the synagogue to the accompaniment of the jazz of DC's Different Drummers.

The many houses of worship that line Massachusetts Avenue welcomed walkers with food, water, and brochures. Docents explained their rituals and beliefs and the Sikh Gudwara offered a delicious fresh cooked vegetarian lunch.

An added bonus for those of us from BJC and BHPC was a brief chat with Rabbi Eric's wife Rabbi Eliana Fischel on her home turf of Washington Hebrew.
