ON USING INCLUSIVE LANGUAGE

"People with disabilities are – first and foremost – people who have individual abilities, interests and needs. About 54 million Americans -- one out of every five individuals -- have a disability. Their contributions enrich our communities and society as they live, work and share their lives. The language a society uses to refer to persons with disabilities shapes its beliefs and ideas about them. One of the major improvements in communicating with and about people with disabilities is "People-First Language." People-First Language emphasizes the person, not the disability. By placing the person first, the disability is no longer the primary, defining characteristic of an individual, but one of several aspects of the whole person. People-First Language is an objective way of acknowledging, communicating, and reporting on disabilities. It eliminates generalizations and stereotypes, by focusing on the person rather than the disability. " -The ARC on People First Language
