

Jewish Theatre

IN THE INTIMATE SETTING OF A HOME

Take a trip away from the stage to experience theatre inside a private home. Encounter representations of life, where real life exists.

MEET THE PLAYWRIGHT

"I began writing Sheltered as an exploration into how people respond to international crises, and what does it mean to take action when no one else around you seems to find it important. Fast forward three years later, and we have found our country in an active conversation about refugees, immigrants, xenophobia, and our role as a moral actor on the world stage. Sheltered speaks to the moral crisis we as a country are now facing, because in many ways we have faced it before." — Alix Sobler

SHELTERED by Alix Sobler

Inspired by many true stories of heroic rescuers. Helen and Leonard Kirsch two ordinary Philadelphians make an extraordinary decision to travel to Vienna, and arrange to bring children back with them to the United States and to safety. Would you dare to go into a war zone to rescue others? Could you find the courage to let your child go with strangers to a strange new land?
