Fulfilling Civic Duties & Small Acts of Kindness

Kitah Gimel (third grade) of our religious school enjoying the fresh air as they learn about the festival of Sukkot

From the President

Joel Freedman

When I agreed to become president of Temple Beth Hillel – Beth El, I had no idea how difficult it would be to write a meaningful, unique message to our congregation on a monthly basis. So, this month I will cheat a bit and provide an edited replay of my Yom Kippur speech. As I was only able to see about 35 people in the sanctuary, I cannot be sure how many of you missed it...

Last year when we gathered for Yom Kippur, I spoke to you about “what I did on my summer vacation.” This year, “what I did not do on my summer vacation” would be more appropriate, the most exciting summer events being the days I decided to put on pants and venture down our driveway to retrieve the mail. Fortunately, so much has been going on at our synagogue that has kept me occupied, especially over the last six months dealing with COVID-19. I will share a few of the highlights with you now.

On Rosh Hashanah, Rabbi Cooper discussed how “small things” can make the biggest difference. With social distancing, it has been the simplest acts that have been most impactful – Cantor Rosner’s calling to congregants observing a Yahrzeit, our staff contacting all our members to see if they needed anything, the summer Challah program, pictures of past-presidents holding Torahs during Kol Nidre, and so many other meaningful ways we maintained the connections to our synagogue and each other as best as possible. I think our current circumstances have made us appreciate these types of interactions more than ever, and I hope we continue to appreciate the “small stuff” once we move on from COVID-19. However, as long as we are kept physically distant, I know we will continue to create opportunities to provide a real sense of community. For example, I would like to share an email from a congregant and friend that I received recently: “Just wanted to reach out to offer my services if you feel like any member has not been reached by the community prior to the holidays. I would hate to think of a congregant who was lonely or felt isolated during the high holidays because they weren’t contacted for any reason.”

As much as we have been focused on opening our pre-school, religious school and our collaborative Hebrew high school for in-person classes and adapting high holiday services, and activities, we also have been making sure we continue to engage with the greater community.

When Hallie Chandler was hired, her original job title was “Membership Outreach.” It was then suggested that the title should be “Community Outreach” so that her focus would not just be on membership engagement, which is very important, but also how we interact with the greater Jewish community and the issues that touch us all.

Jews were at the forefront of the civil rights movement of the 60’s, with Rabbi’s crossing the bridge in Selma, Alabama with John Lewis and speaking alongside Martin Luther King in Washington DC. We who have suffered from the pains of anti-Semitism must always stand against prejudice and injustice of any kind. After the dreadful scenes that have played out on our TV screens this year, our synagogue has stood with the Black community and are working together to bring about peaceful changes in our country and in the world. To that end, I have created a new position on the executive committee to focus on Outreach and Diversity. Lindsay Wetmore-Arkader will lead our efforts to stay at the forefront of the fight for equality and fairness in our society.

I would also like to recognize the Jewish Federation of Greater Philadelphia, led by our congregant, Holly Nelson, which mobilized our community during this year's emergency, raising over $2 million in funding to strengthen Jewish organizations ability to deliver food to the poor and provide services to the elderly and at-risk members of our community. I am proud of and thankful for the partnership between Beth Hillel and the Jewish Federation. Specifically, our rabbi received $4,000 to distribute through his discretionary fund, and our pre-school received clear masks for the teachers so that our kids would be more comfortable in the classroom.

I must say, one of the best days I had this year was the ECC opening day, when I helped greet about 100 of our youngest to the first day of school. Seeing so many happy faces made all the preparation worthwhile. Thanks to Judith Scarani and all the volunteers who worked so hard to make this happen and to provide a safe learning environment for the children. I am also proud that due to all the hard work of Lisa Richman, our 8th grade LMAAH class is the largest of any of the participating synagogues. Most importantly, I would like to thank all our members for continuing their commitment to Temple Beth Hillel – Beth El during these unprecedented times. I believe we have all seen now, more than ever, why it is important to belong to a synagogue and to be part of a community. Our patron model continues to be strong and I am happy to report a slight increase in the number of patrons who have embraced this modern financial commitment program to support the ongoing services of the synagogue.

It is also at this time that I ask our traditional members to consider making an additional financial commitment to Matanah – our annual giving campaign. This year it is more critical than ever that we raise funds to ensure the continuation of all of our programs while we face uncertainty with our sources of income. We have reduced enrollment in the ECC due to less families that are comfortable sending their children to school and due to required reductions in class size. This lost revenue, coupled with the worry of another shut down, leads me to ask for your help now. I have asked the leaders of the shul and the Board of Directors for 100% participation in either the patron model or Matanah – at recent parlor meetings with our Patrons, the Rabbi and I asked for a one-year increase in their commitments – and now I ask the rest of you, who are able, to show your financial support by contributing to Matanah.

I would like to thank all of our members who have already responded to this appeal and have shown your unwavering support of Beth Hillel – Beth El at this critical time.

I will conclude with another thank you, an apology, and a promise. I have been continuously amazed at how hard Ken Krivitzky works, even before the pandemic. But since March, he has really been our most valuable player. We are lucky to have him on our team. More important than the hard work, is how much he cares about the synagogue and each and every member. That truly impresses me. Thank you, Ken.

I personally apologize for any shortcomings we as an organization have had over the past year. We know some things have fallen through the cracks, please know that our intentions are always to meet or exceed your expectations. Finally, I promise that our staff, our leaders and volunteers will continue to work their hardest to make you proud to be a member of Temple Beth Hillel—Beth El.

The Antidote for Covid-19:

A Big Dose of Small

Kindnesses

By Rabbi Cooper
& Hallie Chandler

What would our world be like if everyone chose a small act of kindness or caring as their “mitzvah”?

What would it do for those we would help? What would it do for us? This has been a strange and unimaginable year. The arrival of a pandemic has required that we change our entire way of living, of connecting, of gathering. That which we previously thought was mundane now represents a long-awaited ideal for which we anxiously wait. We want simple things, like going to the grocery store without face masks, not worrying about 6-feet of distancing in the check-out lines and being able to go both ways down an aisle. As our goal, we have set a return to our pre-COVID simple routines and practices.

Beyond the restrictions, which infringe on our routines, we have become isolated. Our isolation has created, for many, a sense of loneliness and detachment. This is where our synagogue community has stepped up and intervened in important and meaningful ways. We hope you have felt this:

* For those unable or reluctant to go out to do errands, we have arranged for a cadre of volunteer shoppers to help with shopping.

* Even while our building was closed, our staff continued to work by calling every household to check-in, to make sure that someone who needed some help got that help, to spend a few minutes chatting, or just to provide a welcome break in the monotony of being homebound.

* Our long-time, ongoing “soup delivery” initiative, Soup for the Soul, enhanced with homemade challahs made by a team of challah bakers, including Elisheva Apple, who also helps to deliver them.

* The list goes on. Through this process, we have learned a great deal about how we can best help the members of our congregation and our greater community. We have come to realize that our members, and others are uplifted, engaged, and excited by the small gestures we have made. We need not initiate complicated or expensive programs. A word, a call, a visit, even if done remotely, is tremendously appreciated. As we move forward, the more we connected we become, the greater the bonds that connect us.

On Rosh Hashanah I gave a sermon, which can be found on our website, about Mitzvot Kallot, small mitzvot that are felt so powerfully and are so deeply appreciated.

"If we think smaller, if we think of the gnat that killed Titus or the coronavirus that has killed so many, we begin to realize that there is power in small things. Power not just to cause disease and death. There is power for good in simple deeds we can perform. I believe that these seemingly small deeds also have the power to change the world."

I have asked our Director of Community Engagement, Hallie Chandler, to work with me and us, to help us continue these Mitzvot Kallot. Here is how we will do it:

Community Initiative:

We encourage each of our congregants and families to complete the following bingo chart (on the next page) and share your completed accomplishments with our community. We hope to get at least 613 completed bingo sheets by the end of the year when we will have a BIG CELEBRATION for all the marvelous small mitzvot we can accomplish every day.

Individuals/families who submit a completed card will have their names illustrated on our Mitzvot Kallot website page. Please submit these to Hallie Chandler at HChandler@tbhbe.org.

Congregation Initiative:

There are many small mitzvah you can continue to partake in within our own TBH-BE community. If you are interested in doing some of the following, please reach out to Ken, Krivitzky@tbhbe.org to be placed on an ongoing volunteer email list.

~Here is a list of people. Can you call a few?

~Here are a few members that need someone to shop for them. Can you do that once?

~Someone needs to be driven to an appointment, helped with an errand, or visited. Can you do that once?

Over these past few months, despite the changes we have noted in our lives, we have experienced some of these powerful acts, either as a recipient or as a helper, and we want to build on that.

We have invited Brad Aronson to our congregation, author of the book, Human Kind. His book recounts his personal stories and those of others, who have been sustained, helped, and supported in tough times, by small, easy mitzvot. We hope you will join us on Sunday, January 10, at 10:30 am where we will be joined by Brad Aronson to hear his stories about the power of small deeds in a talk back book club discussion. You can order his book through the Narberth Bookstore by calling them at 610.664.1112. Please RSVP for the talk back on our website.

A single deed will not change the world. A single deed will not solve any of the big problems faced by humanity today. But a single act of kindness, for that person, might mean the world.

I hope you will join us in this initiative, either as a helper or as one who could use some help. Collectively, these acts will become antidotes for the loneliness of COVID 19 and how we become more deeply connected to each other and the community around us.

The small things in life can either be globally destructive or monumentally helpful. As we approach the year 5781 we hope each of our TBH-BE families will focus on the smallest things that can be done that make a huge impact in our world. We encourage each family to complete the entire bingo chart below and share their accomplishments over the year with our community. We hope to get at least 613 completed bingo sheets by the end of the year where we will have a BIG CELEBRATION for all the marvelous small mitzvot we can accomplish every day.

On the morning of Rosh Hashanah, I heard a loud gasp from my living room. My sister, praying over Zoom, heard of the passing of RBG. It was the first time something like this had happened in a long time -- to have such an important national event occur on a day when I was not connected to the outside world. There was no bell ringing in the distance notifying us of the event, no daily newspaper being delivered to my door or flag I could see from my apartment window being lowered to half-mast. If it were not for my sister's custom of being on Zoom, I would not have known until I turned my phone on after chag and experienced the influx of multiple messages.

This made me think of the feeling of urgency, needing to know everything immediately as it occurs, that many of us feel during times of great change. While normally we might have more patience, this sense of urgency can feel protective against the unknown. Soon we will enter November when the season will transition from fall to winter, which comes with many potential unknowns. This Thanksgiving weekend we will read from Parasha Vayetzei which contains another transitional mechanism. In Jacob's dream journey we read about the stairway to heaven, the famous ladder connecting the two realms, heaven, and earth.

"[Jacob] dreamed, and behold a ladder was set on the ground and its top reached to heaven; and behold, angels of G-d were ascending and descending upon it" — Genesis 28:12.

What can this ladder teach us regarding patience vs. urgency? The ladder symbolizes the time in between when we go from feeling grounded, surrounded by what we know, to the place where our future might take us, a place of uncertainty. This ladder can be the reminder that transitions involve small steps yet require persistent forward movement.

I have been encouraged during this time to think about the steps and planning we as a congregation can take to strategically prepare for the future. To prepare for after the pandemic, we need to know what needs, values, and desires our congregants will have. Will people look for travel opportunities, nights out with babysitting, or intimate moments with close friends? As we do not know what this November may bring, I encourage all of us to think about our own strategic plans to help us prepare for a better future. While we wait for that time to come, we need to have a little more patience with ourselves and be comforted that even in moments of unknown, good will inevitably come.

We are overwhelmed that this Thanksgiving, Danny and I will be expecting our first child. As I will be on maternity leave, I truly hope you write down memories and stories to share with me when I finally finish climbing that ladder into the unknown and return to work.

In health,
Hallie

From the Director of the Religious School

Lisa Richman

The Hebrew month of Cheshvan is also known as Mar Cheshvan, bitter Cheshvan, because of the lack of Jewish holidays. I tend to think of it, however, as an “in between” month. After all, Cheshvan is the month that falls between the Hebrew months of Tishri and Kislev, between the High Holidays and Chanukah, It is also the month between Sukkot and Thanksgiving. Being “in between” seems as though Cheshvan has a good deal: from Cheshvan we can see holidays in whichever way we look! Cheshvan is surrounded by blessings.

It is the purpose of blessings to help us to express gratitude, an important Jewish concept, and a good practice for us all.

תניא היה רבי מאיר אומר חייב אדם
לברך מאה ברכות בכל יום שנאמר (דברים י'
(ב) ועתה ישראל מה ה' אלהיך שואל מעמך

It is taught in a baraita that Rabbi Meir would say: A person is obligated to recite one hundred blessings every day, as it is stated in the verse: “And now, Israel, what [ma] does the Lord your God require of you” (Dvarim 10:12). Rabbi Meir interprets the verse as though it said one hundred [me’a], rather than ma.

On a daily basis, we recite blessings before and after eating, chant the blessings in our liturgy for the Ma’ariv, Shacharit and Mincha services, and recite blessings upon unexpected occurrences such as seeing a rainbow or hearing good news. Together this makes 100: 100 times each day we list that for which we are grateful for.

As the Director of our Religious School, I have a unique source of blessings on a regular basis.

It was a blessing to be able to see our students, staff, and parents on our first day of Religious School, both in person or online.

It is a blessing that we entered 5781 with a strong enrollment, and every child returned safely to their parents at the end of that first morning!

It was a blessing that when life gave us lemons, our students were eager to make lemonade.

What a blessing it was to greet TBH-BE middle and high school students at the opening of Lower Merion Area Hebrew High School, students who are continuing their Jewish education after becoming b’nai mitzvah. It was a blessing seeing their joy in being able to greet each other in person, as they enjoyed ice cream and hearing about an exciting year of learning and camaraderie ahead.

In the Religious School, it was a blessing to hand our Gan students, our Kindergarteners, their own small sefer Torah as they embark on the path of a formal Jewish education.

Our Better Together: Do-Re-Mi Chorus is a blessing each time our past and present students join adults in the congregation to sing together as well as teach technology tools to help the adults navigate the 21st century.

As the year progresses, our talented and enthusiastic Religious School staff works hard to imbue our students with a sense of what Abraham Joshua Heschel terms radical amazement, a way of looking at the world and expressing gratitude for all that we have and the potential. I look forward to a wonderful and full year of study and joy. As I think of the month of Cheshvan, I see the blessings of the past and anticipate the blessings of the year ahead.

From the Director of the Early Childhood Center

Judith Mont Scarani

Shalom to my Temple Family from the ECC! It is always a true pleasure for me to welcome parents to Back-to-School Night. This was certainly the strangest back-to-school night we have ever had. On Tuesday evening, September 22nd, I met with over 50 parents to thank them for their commitment to our school and the protocols and procedures we have developed to help keep our children, our families, and our staff safe and healthy.

Each year I am always proud to introduce our staff on Back to School Night. Since most of our parents have only seen our staff with masks on, I shared a short video of the amazing team we have at TBH-BE without masks! I hope that someday soon, we will all share our smiles 'mask-free'. This short video can be viewed on our TBH-BE web page.

We currently have 103 children enrolled and 34 staff members. This is truly remarkable when I consider how small the enrollment in other local synagogue schools are this year. This is only possible because of our detailed and exhaustive planning, combined with a professional and dedicated staff, and the confidence our families have in our school to continue maintaining the highest standards of education, while following a whole new world under Covid-19 operating guidelines. We do not take that trust and confidence lightly.

Keeping up with all that is going on in a child's classroom is harder when you cannot visit the classroom. Our parents are not entering the building at all. Email, newsletters, and phone calls are still, and always will be, a great way to stay in touch. We also use Shutterfly to share calendars and photographs with our families, so they can see what is happening in school. There are already well over 200 photos posted with great images of very happy children engaged in learning, praying, running, painting, drawing, free-play, and friendship. It is not an easy job – especially this year!

Another very important way to stay in-touch with school and keep up with what is happening is to volunteer time to the ECC. Our school needs our Home and School Association, and our Home and School Association needs our parents more than ever before. When school closures disrupted our school year last march, it also stopped our crucial efforts to form a new H.S.A. Board. The H.S.A. coordinates a huge number of events and activities we have all come to rely on. These include:

- Homeroom parents – which we still need.
- Hot lunches when we are once again able to provide them, challah on Friday for the classrooms and for families if they want to order one.
- Shabbat Dinner for ECC Families after our Shabbat Shalom Yeladim Service.
- Purim activities including the carnival.
- Our Annual Oneg Shabbat and end-of-the year party to honor our teachers.
- A holiday luncheon to thank our Maintenance Staff.
- Our annual fundraiser which has raised between $20-40,000 annually for classroom iPads, new playground equipment, updated classroom furniture, new floors, painting and more

- Beginning and End of the Year School Picnics

These activities are supported by the annual H.S.A. membership fee; however, they are organized, planned, and shopped for, by parents and grandparents in our community.

Parent support and involvement is never more important than it is now. We need each other. The ECC needs you. Please e-mail me jscarani@tbhbe.org or call me to get involved.

As you can see – it really does take a village. In Hebrew, the word we would use is not village (kfar). We use kehillah, community, and we are thrilled to have you as part of our TBH -BE kehillah. By definition, a village is a group of people and perhaps some businesses together in one place. A community is a group sharing a common understanding and often the same language, manners, tradition, and law.

On our web site we refer to this as “looking at the world through a Jewish lens”. It is through this lens that the children will be learning about literature, math, ecology, music, dance, history, values of gimilut chasadim (kindness to others), derekh eretz (“ways of the world”), mishpat (“justice”), tzedakah (“righteousness”), and rachamim (“compassion”) among others. Compassion can be found in the artwork that comes home, the compassion our children express while playing with friends, during shabbat and holiday celebrations, in the songs that they sing, and in the prayers that they learn.

We look forward to continuing a healthy and wonderful new year!

Creative Adaptations in Uncertain Times

Marnie wanted to make a date at the mikveh to celebrate her engagement that was happening in a few weeks. She wanted to know when the traditional time for a Jewish woman was to come for this occasion. "Did you mean you want to mark your upcoming wedding?" "No, it's for my engagement." I told her that this was not a traditional time to come to the mikveh but together we would make a meaningful ritual for this occasion. And we did. Her mother and mother-in-law were present to bless her.

This time of Covid has given us lots of uncertainty. Marnie did not know when she and her fiancée would stand under the chuppah, but her engagement was certain. She knew it was this moment that she wanted to mark by immersing in the mikveh.

From the President of Sisterhood

Debbie Greenberg

I hope that you had a wonderful and meaningful High Holiday connection this year. At first, I was quite worried. How would I feel celebrating alone from home, without a sense of community? I opted to attend a few of the socially distanced services in person, I also streamed online. I was pleasantly relieved that both were effective for me in different ways.

When I was on Zoom, I could scroll through and see who was on, watching as I was, and feel happy to see so many friends online. I got to see one of my adorable previous preschool students and my former assistants in the ECC. In person, I enjoyed the beauty and spirituality of being in the sanctuary to focus on.

On Kol Nidre night, as I listened to Rabbi Cooper's sermon, he talked about T'mimim, opening your heart which starts with the letter Tav, symbolizing a house. He showed visuals of a regular Tav and an enlarged Tav to show that the house can easily become bigger to fill with anyone who enters with a full heart and wants be a part of our home.

Listening to him speak about this reminded me of Sisterhood.

Sisterhood is for all women in our synagogue home. It is here for us to enter with a full heart. Why not join us? The house will get bigger and the heart fuller when you give us a try.

The Rabbi continued to speak about differences among the people in our congregation, noting that we are not all the same. Diversity gives us many options for people to connect with others. Sisterhood too, is diverse. We are not one size fits all, there is plenty of room for us to help make our house bigger and fuller. We welcome you all to give us a try. There are all kinds of events and friends for the different women in our synagogue home. We began the year with a terrific Zoom trivia fundraiser for the entire shul community. Thank you to V. P's of fundraising, Taryn Wortman, Julie Karp, and Steph Gantman. There were over 30 families from all different cohorts that participated and had a blast! Todah to our Jewish Studies VP's Susan Schmidt and Cynthia Saltzman for wonderful programming as well. Members enjoyed a movie discussion, after viewing the film Arranged.

Planning the Opening Sisterhood event was a struggle for the committee, made up of Amy Botel, Anita Dorf (Programming V.P.'s), Melissa Richman, and Jill Cantor-Burns

(Membership V. P's) to envision a hybrid event. However, the committee put together a wonderful evening! It consisted of a fabulous speaker who taught us about mindfulness to help us cope with our current stressful Covid life situation. Members could opt in for a socially distant outdoor or Zoom option. The organizers and I hoped to have been able to meet in person, within the physical walls of the Sukkah. It wound up being a wonderful success! Participants were engaged with others in the various Sukkot where they attended, and the Speaker David Fask was terrific. Kol Hakavod to our programming VP's.

Our next Board Meeting is scheduled for November 9th at 7:15, via Zoom. We encourage all of you to join us. Every person is invited to come see what we are all about. Volunteer for anything, you are part of the Sisterhood board. As the Rabbi concluded, referencing JFK, ask not what Sisterhood can do for you, but what can you do for Sisterhood? What you can do is join us, give it a try. There is always something going on with Sisterhood.

From the President of Men's Club

Sam Brint

When thinking of the importance of community I ask, what does it mean to be together? How do we support one another? How do we currently stay connected?

I am choosing to focus on Men's Club, however, my thoughts du jour could likely be applied to many. Over the course of the past months, many of our familiar events have not occurred or have been reengineered. Scotch N' Steak has become Scotch N' Take. We ushered in the New Year without ushering. Men's Club helped build the Sukkah in the back by the playground as well as a Sukkah Village in the front parking lot.

Plans are constantly changing, and we have been consistently engaged and flexible. We have continued with our first Tuesday of each month's Zoom meeting. Book Club is still offering a full library of content.

Considering the bigger picture, we have remained connected, even if just to make others aware as to our upcoming programs. We still share in our simchas, our illnesses and other life and death events. We continue to address the needs of our community like the Mitzvah Food Pantries with our annual food drive, spearheaded by Jeremy Heller, as well as the community at large.

Each little connection makes a difference in the fabric of our community. Relationships get strengthened as we work together for the greater good. We can count on and support one another.

Our Men's Club was recently awarded the FJMC Quality Club award for the fourth year in a row. It is well deserved, and we should be proud. I am continually impressed as to the number of us who have chosen to commit so much of their time and energy to do whatever is needed. Our Men's Club community has remained strong and vibrant during very challenging times. This is a testament to us.

To the families who contributed to our Sukkah Village:

The Weinstein Family
The Forsted Family
The Ehrlich Family
The Ross Family
The Kohn Family
The Elkin Family
