ALL ARE WELCOME!

FRIENDSHIP HAS NO RELIGION

ARRANGED

Sometimes people meet and fall in love on their own; other times people looking for love meet through a matchmaker. What makes a good match? The award-winning romantic drama movie, "Arranged" addresses that age-old question, and offers some contemporary, creative solutions. Two beautiful young teachers, one an Orthodox Jew and the other a Muslim, cross boundaries and flout convention when they forge a powerful and lasting friendship. The two women bond over their shared experiences of "arranged marriages" through their respective religious and traditional customs. The movie, starring Zoe Lister Jones, Alison Becker and Alysia Reiner, was directed by Diane Crespo and Stefan C. Schaefer.

Please watch the movie on your own, on Amazon Prime. Then zoom in for a thoughtful discussion, facilitated by Cynthia Saltzman and Susan Schmidt.
