Facebook? Social Media? Let’s Talk!

Both the power and the limits of social media were evidenced during the recently concluded elections. Americans, on an unprecedented level, were able to connect with one another to express opinions, access news and receive instant updates. It’s rather obvious that Facebook, Snapchat, Twitter and myriad other social media outlets have had a transformative impact on modern society. Unfortunately, the tremendous power of the social media outlets has also exacerbated tensions and deepened the divisions between people of opposing viewpoints.

I’m often asked why I don’t have my own Facebook page. Some have wondered why I don’t send out tweets to share my opinions on various matters. It’s not as if I’m technologically phobic. Between email and voicemail and our Temple Sinai Snippets and Website, I communicate electronically with hundreds, if not thousands, of people every week. So why not Facebook and Twitter, et al?

Let’s put it this way: the quintessential Jewish mode of study is chevrutah, “to study with a partner.” Ideally, that study partner will have a strong opinion and perspective that challenges your own. Indeed, the study partners look for points of disagreement. Engaging in an intelligent debate is a time-honored Jewish method that has been seen as key to sharpening one’s mind and deepening one’s understanding. Of course, such an exercise requires a willingness to humbly, sensitively and sincerely entertain opposing viewpoints. It isn’t always easy, but it is certainly easier to accomplish this in person than through electronic postings. My preference is to discuss and explore issues in person. I would rather be in dialogue with you than post opinions and snapshots of thoughts.

Perhaps it is simply because social media is still relatively new, but it seems as if the posts and blogs that “go viral” are purposefully inflammatory. In turn, the subsequent comments only ratchet up the anger and often devolve into crude name calling and mockery. There has to be a better way. There is! It’s called getting together to study and talk.

In the days and weeks after the election, we have had a number of opportunities to discuss the results. At Temple Sinai programs like Lunch & Learn, Bible & Beers, in our classes, discussion groups and at the Shabbat onegs, we have been able to share feelings in a respectful and sensitive way. Words written on a computer screen can be read as two-dimensional attacks. Words spoken face to face take on deeper meaning and include the nuance of physical expressions and tone. Words on a screen are disembodied entities prone to be misread or misinterpreted. Words spoken face-to-face are elevated as the heartfelt thoughts of friends and neighbors. When we are face-to-face, we temper our emotions. We are even quicker to forgive someone for holding different opinions!

It goes without saying that, in the weeks, months and years ahead, there will be many issues that evoke strong feelings and opinions. As they do, I hope that you will choose to join with us to discuss in person. Add your thoughts and opinions. Listen to others. Together we will model the kind of respectful interaction this nation so badly needs.

Let’s go to Washington, D.C. To Support Israel!
Annual AIPAC Policy Conference
March 26-28, 2017

AIPAC

This March, join the dozens of Temple Sinai members who will attend the 2017 AIPAC Policy Conference, March 26-28 in Washington, D.C. At this year’s conference, well over 15,000 will gather to support Israel and bring our concerns to the attention of this country’s leadership. AIPAC, the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, is universally acknowledged as the most important and effective pro-Israel lobbying group. American support for Israel is its only mission and it is a mission that AIPAC has accomplished to the highest degree. Come join me and our Temple Sinai delegation at the AIPAC Policy Conference. Together, we will hear from national and international political leaders, scholars, and leading journalists from around the world. Most importantly, AIPAC’s Policy Conference gives us the opportunity to meet with our members of Congress face-to-face to help influence the issues shaping America, Israel and the entire world.

To learn more or to register for the AIPAC Policy Conference, visit www.aipac.org/PC or contact me personally if you are interested in joining Temple Sinai’s delegation to Washington, D.C. I hope to hear from you soon! - Rick Rheins

From Rabbi Susan Rheins

There was no cause for alarm as two fire engines flanked the cockpit of my EL AL plane upon its arrival to the gate at Israel’s Ben Gurion Airport. As streams of water shot through the air, shouts of mazal tov erupted from the passengers, congratulating one of the pilots upon his retirement at age 65 after flying EL AL planes worldwide for 40 years. Little did we know that just days later parts of the country would be devastated by horrific forest fires, some natural and others acts of environmental terrorism. I was in Jerusalem when the fires raged. Although the city was unaffected physically — cobalt blue skies and sunny, though very windy, days predominated — the disaster was palpable in the way people sprang into action, donating money, clothing, household goods, food and other items to help the victims.

As I shared with you last month, I was in Israel to visit my son Josh who is an Israel Government Fellow working at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in the Congressional Affairs Department. With a lot of discretionary time on my hands until he finished work at 5:00 p.m., I spent my days exploring Jerusalem, both the Old City and the newer neighborhoods, and touring sites: Jerusalem City Hall, the Supreme Court of Israel, the Knesset, Har Herzl and, of course, the outdoor markets. I also engaged in a bit of people watching: daven-ers praying with impassioned fervor at the Western Wall, vendors hawking in resonant voice their succulent produce bursting with flavor and color, and commuters squeezed shoulder-to-shoulder on the light rail scurrying aside to make room for a young mother with a double-wide stroller. Amusingly, I also observed female soldiers sprawled out on the stairs in the Supreme Court, chomping on gum while braiding each other’s hair, completely oblivious to their instructor, and young children, religious and secular, on school field trips eyeing one another as social curiosities. There’s a tangible intensity to life in Israel, which is understandable in light of its geopolitical situation. Yet, as one speaker pointed out in a lecture I attended co-sponsored by the Israel Council on Foreign Relations and the World Jewish Congress, the greatest threat to Israel isn’t Hamas, Hezbollah or Iran. Rather, it’s global isolation. Militarily, he remarked, Israel has the resources to protect its populace, but without an active role in the global marketplace, Israel would be strangled.

There are myriad ways for us to actively support Israel. Opposing BDS by buying “blue and white,” lobbying our Congressional Representatives and Senators to support pro-Israel legislation, donating to Israeli charities, and speaking out against anti-Israel rhetoric are just a few. Of course, there’s no better way to demonstrate one’s love for Israel than by being there. How proud I was to be among the hundreds of people standing in line at passport control in Ben Gurion Airport waiting to receive my entrance visa, and how proud I was upon returning to the USA declaring to the customs agent, “I’ve been in Israel.” Like the fire engines that showered my pilot with streams of congratulations and like the firefighters who flew to Israel from all parts of the world to assist in putting out the forest fires, each of us can find meaningful ways to personally express our support for Israel. Israel needs us as much as we need Israel.

50 Once Upon A Time...

By late 1966, Rabbi Zwerin was serving the final months of the then maximum three-year period as Assistant Rabbi of Temple Emanuel. Knowing that he would be leaving Denver shortly for a large congregation in California, there was a group of people -- Abe Wagner, Chuck Shom, and Donna & Howard Lutz, in particular, who were taken with the idea of keeping the Zwerins in town.

At a dinner party at the Shom’s home, the idea of starting a new Temple in Denver was broached. The Rabbi was asked how many members we might need to start a new congregation, and his immediate response was, “One, with a lot of money.” Unable to find that ‘one,’ the group decided to embark on a campaign to find 100 members from the unaffiliated population in Denver. The preliminary “back of the envelope budget” was $250 per year from each family. Donna took the lead in the recruiting efforts, making dozens of daily phone calls, and even approaching potential candidates in supermarkets and shopping malls.

In the beginning, it was younger couples in their late 20s and early 30s who attended several home parlor meetings at which Rabbi Zwerin explained his vision of a new congregation. By March of 1967, at a meeting at the JCC, those who had committed to the new Temple gave it its name. With the High Holy Days nearing, Sinai membership was still 25 households shy of its goal. Convinced that this venture would succeed, the Zwerins agreed to move forward with this tireless, committed group in Denver. By the summer of 1967, arrangements had been made to rent space at First Plymouth Congregational Church on the corner of Hampden and Colorado, a wonderful facility that would be “home” for our first nine years. With office space found nearby on Colorado Blvd., and Dorothy Bernstein hired as our first secretary, we were officially in the shul business. Our first HHD services filled the sanctuary at First Plymouth and by the end of Yom Kippur, our membership was a solid 87 and growing, with 125 children in the Religious School. And, as they say, the rest is (our) history.

Honorees:

RABBI RAYMOND AND RIKKI ZWERIN: Rikki was born in Belgrad and lived with her family there and in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia until the war began in 1941. When her family was killed by the Nazis, she, an eight year old, survived on the streets by wit and luck. In 1944, having found her uncle and aunt in Italy, she went with them as legal immigrants on a British ship to (then) Palestine. She was raised in part in a youth village near Lod. Ray grew up in Los Angeles and graduated from UCLA. After two years at the brand new campus of HUC in L.A., he won a fellowship to study at Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

The two met in Jerusalem and were married in Tel Aviv six months later. Rikki graduated from the Seligsberg School of Medicine of the Hebrew University and worked in Hematology at Jewish Hospital in Cincinnati while Ray was attending classes at HUC. Upon ordination, he became Assistant Rabbi at Temple Emanuel from 1964-1967, after which he and Rikki helped found Temple Sinai. (The story of our first 25 years as a congregation will soon be available on CD from the office.)

They have two married children and four delicious grandchildren. Together they have led over 25 community Israel tours, taking more than 1,000 people to see the land of our ancestors. Rikki was responsible for the creation of many of the Torah covers and obtaining almost all of the rimmonim and yads that grace our Torahs. They are humble and grateful that the congregation chose to name the sanctuary after them.

DONNA AND HOWARD LUTZ were married in 1960. Their courtship began in junior high school and carried on through college. They have two sons, Gary and Kevin, and six grandchildren.

Donna was raised in Brighton. She graduated from the University of Denver with a degree in Speech Pathology and Education. Donna began her career as a consultant, speaker, and trainer for Newborn Hearing Testing at the Colorado State Health Department, Rose Medical Center and University of Colorado Health Sciences Center. She subsequently spent the following 18.5 years at Jewish Family Services of Colorado as the Nursing Home Outreach Coordinator, working on behalf of residents in over 50 facilities throughout Colorado. Donna retired in 2010.

Howard is a Denver native. He graduated from East High School and earned a degree in Business from the University of Denver. He practiced as a CPA/Business Consultant in Denver for over 50 years. He is a past-president of the Colorado Society of CPAs. He was the first treasurer and third President of Temple Sinai.

CHUCK SHOM was born and raised in Minnesota. Upon high school graduation, Chuck moved to Colorado to attend the University of Colorado, and, after his four years in Colorado, it was apparent that he never wanted to leave. Chuck pursued a career as a teacher, counselor and school administrator in the Jefferson County Schools. He worked there for 32 years.

Chuck’s now adult daughters, Susan and Karen, were two of the first students to attend the Temple Sinai Religious School.

ABE WAGNER is the father of three grown sons, David, Daniel and Douglas, all of whom graduated from Temple Sinai’s Religious School program.

Abe was originally an executive at the JCC. Having pursued a Master’s Degree in Social Work, he began a psychiatric clinic in 1970. In promoting the clinic, Abe conducted speaking engagements on mental health, transactional analysis and NLP which further led to seminars and conventions for the past 40 years. Abe proudly has worked in all 50 states and 35 plus countries. His books "The Transactional Manager" (Prentice Hall Publisher) and "Say It Straight Or You’ll Show it Crooked" have been published in eight countries. At age 80, Abe is doing 80 gigs around the world. He and Susan Friedman have been married for 22 years. Life is good.

Dippin’ Dots Day at Preschool!
From Michelle Schwartz, MARE
Director of Religious School Education

We have had an amazing first half of the year! I want to take this opportunity to thank all of you for your time and investment in our school. Our Religious School program is only as strong as the families that participate. You have consistently shown your dedication and commitment to our program through your participation and involvement. In addition, we are blessed with an incredible staff of teachers and Madrakhim. I can’t say enough about the talented community of educators that work so hard to ensure the students have the best possible experience and education. We are looking forward to a wonderful second semester!

Temple Sinai Youth — A Closer Look...

David Goldstein, 11th Grade
TSGY Member & Camp Rainbow Counselor
Hello. My name is David Goldstein and I’m 16 years old. I am very involved in my high school’s marching, jazz, and concert band programs, as well as in several Jewish activities here. When I was a freshman, I decided to join NFTY. My first event wasn’t exactly the best, but I decided to give it one more try at the regional event in the spring, and I’m glad I did. I’ve never had more fun, and I always keep coming back to see all my friends from around the region. NFTY is also what got me interested in Camp Rainbow, a summer camp in St. Louis for young kids that either have cancer or are survivors. When I sent in my counselor application right after I turned 16, I didn’t think they’d take me, but then, in April, I got the acceptance letter, and that was the start of the best experience of my life. You’re basically these kids’ parent for a week, and being a 10 year old hyper boy was a little difficult. But being at camp really opened my eyes to the problems we face in life and put them into perspective. These little boys and girls are the strongest people I’ve ever met. I think the world is going to end when the fridge runs out of food, but these kids are fighting something that could kill them, but you’d never know it because they act just like normal kids. They run, scream, play, swim, and do everything a normal kid does. For this one week, that’s exactly what they were...normal kids. Now, as I go through my own life, whenever I face a challenge, or get into a fight with my mom, I stop for a moment and look back and think: does this really matter? Does getting into a fight with my parents over who ate the last box of leftovers really matter? Sometimes they do, but this experience has changed the way I look at and perceive the world around me, all thanks to what I’ve done with NFTY.

Temple Sinai’s 9Health Fair
Save the Date – Sunday, April 2, 2017
7:00 a.m. - Noon
Temple Sinai is hosting its eighth annual 9Health Fair! Each spring, 9Health Fairs are held throughout Colorado offering a variety of free and low-cost health awareness and educational screenings. Participant registration will open at the end of February 2017 at 9healthfair.org.

9Health Fairs rely completely on both medical and non-medical volunteers to operate, and this is a wonderful way to give back to our community. If you would like to help us by volunteering in a medical or non-medical capacity on the day of our health faire, please go to www.9healthfair.org to register. Should you have questions, please contact our Site Leader, Lin Sunshine, by phone at 303-748-0866 or by email at linj.sunshine@gmail.com. Let’s make Temple Sinai’s 9Health Fair the biggest and best in the area.
